

has presented. To the extent plaintiff's grievances are directed to individuals, and not to the United States, this court lacks jurisdiction over them. United States v. Sherwood, 312 U. S. 584, 588 (1941). The Court of Federal Claims has not been given jurisdiction over claims, such as plaintiff's grievances or wrongful death assertion, which sound in tort. Brown v. United States, 105 F.3d 621, 623 (Fed. Cir. 1997). To the extent plaintiff asserts violation of the regulations concerning prisoner discrimination and access to legal materials, the Court of Federal Claims lacks jurisdiction since the cited regulations do not mandate a monetary remedy in this event. United States v. White Mountain Apache Tribe, 537 U. S. 465, 473 (2003).

Plaintiff has failed to plead a valid unlawful imprisonment claim in that there is no indication that his conviction was reversed or set aside on the grounds of innocence as required by 28 U.S.C. § 2513. Wood v. United States, 91 Fed. Cl. 569 (2009). Finally plaintiff's reference to a $72,000 confiscation apparently involves the order entered by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas on July 2, 1996, in the United States of America v. $72,050.00 in United States Currency, Civil Action No. 3-96-CV-0026R, in which it was "ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED that: (1) $72,050.00 in United States Currency shall be forfeited to the United States of America." And the same order also directed the "[r]eturn of the cost bond in the amount of $5,000 to Claimant Arnoldo Rojero. . . ." N. D. Tx. (Dallas), Case No. 3:96-CV-00026-R, ECF No. 27, p. 2. The Court of Federal Claims lacks jurisdiction over a claim involving only a seizure or forfeiture authorized pursuant to the criminal laws. Acadia Tech. v. United States, 458 F.3d 1327, 1331 (Fed. Cir. 2006).

Accordingly, as the United States Court of Federal Claims lacks subject matter jurisdiction over the matters asserted by Mr. Rojero, it is ORDERED that Defendant's Dismissal Motion is GRANTED and plaintiff's filings, comprising a Complaint, shall be DISMISSED.
